Cruise to Adventure with the Art of Travel

You can journey to hot spots, exotic locales or out of the ordinary destinations. If you have dreams about sailing the Indian Ocean, riding a tuk-tuk in Thailand or climbing the steps of China's Great wall, now's the time to do it.

Cruising is one of the fastest growing sectors of the travel industry. Travel prices are down and availability is up. The selection of new ships and their offers are astounding, and for the first time in years all the major luxury cruise lines are also deploying new vessels. Increased capacity means there is a departure date and an itinerary just for you!

Well-priced journeys are available to the Caribbean and the Panama Canal this winter. Few places on earth are more conducive to relaxation than the islands of the Caribbean. Light, tropical breezes, warm waters, and fascinating cultures await you in this tranquil atmosphere.

Another option is to combine the spectacular scenery of the Caribbean Islands with the Gatun Locks of Panama. A Canal commentator is on board to answer questions about the locks and offer insights on the history and construction of this wonder of the world. Or, if you prefer, sail the South American passage and enjoy the Exploration Speaker Series, along with highlights of history, culture, and natural wonders. More time in port and diverse itineraries make this experience for travellers a "must-see."

For a trip of a lifetime, why not consider the 103-day World Cruise, departing and returning to New York. This diverse and fascinating worldwide itinerary is available in 2011 for an incredible $22,000. Come to port in places like Antarctica, Africa, Seychelles, India, Asia, the Far East and North America. You'll experience stunning world cities such as Cape Town, Mumbai, Singapore, Hong Kong, Osaka, Vancouver, Buenos Aires and more.

There are plenty of other opportunities to discover the mystery and intrigue of faraway lands.

How about sailing the Mediterranean in 2010 from Barcelona and Rome, or journeying in the South Pacific, Antarctic or Australia and New Zealand? Closer to home are the spectacular Alaskan cruises, where you can see some of the most remarkable natural wonders and wildlife in the world. Migrating whales, blankets of wildflowers, majestic glaciers, icy fjords, arctic tundra and wildlife can be seen among the snow-capped mountains and stunning seascapes.

For an even more exclusive time, why not try yachting in the Caribbean? Sailing luxuriously in a super-yacht to the Virgin Islands, Antigua, St Bart's, St Maarten, Guadeloupe, Martinique, St Lucia, St Vincent and the Grenadines and Grenada is an experience not to be missed. Also available are megapower yachts and motor boats, along with catamarans and scuba charters.

Whatever your heart's desire, relax on the balcony of your cruise ship, or enjoy a shore excursion for your next vacation. Explore intriguing sights, sun-dappled jungles, perfect beaches, intriguing cities, fascinating history and family fun. We have the latest information on what's new in cruising for 2009-2010 and beyond.
